

moderate their interests to each «»ther and play tutu thrir hand mutually as members of the same family, that the wraith aw strength of any our part should be viewed a* the wraith ant strength of the whole, (Hugh WUliatn^m, i;-tjS. F, VII., , - tn.

UNION.—The last hope of human liberty iu this world re*t on tis. We ought, for so dear a stale, to saerilu-e every at tachmcnt and every enmity.
 Leave the 1'rr .idriit lYre !»» clmos his own coadjutors, to pursue his nun wra--wvs, an*!
 Mippur him and them, even if we think we arc WIMM' than dun, lu»ncsu« than they are, or possessing nu>iv enlarged informal 5«w i«i th state of things. If we m<»ve in mas*, lu* it ever so ehvuitoush we shall attain ottr ohjeet; hut if we break into squads, rver one pursuing the]>atti he thinks HUM dirt-el, \e Inn-Mine a easy conquest to those who ean nmv hruvly lu«!«l u-> in elit'fV I repeat again that we ought not to M'hi>ma<i/«' «»n rithrr man n measures.
 Principles alone ean justify that If we ttud ,ij««\ ernment in all its hranehes rushing lu*:ul!nn^, like n»r pri'iUvtv sors, into the arms of nutnarehy; if we find thrm viulatiug' mi clearest rights, the trial by jury, the freedom of the press, th freedom of opinion, civil or religions, nr opening <»n «mr pear of mind or personal safety the sluiees nf tern»ri^m; if we se them raising standing armies, when the al»-»enee nf all otlu danger points to these as the sole objects uis \whirh they ar employed, then indeed let us withdraw and call the nati«m t its tents. But while our functionaries are wise, and IMWCS and vigilant, let us move compactly under their g«td;mee, an we have nothing to fear. Things may here and there %n a lilt! wrong. It is not in their power to prevent it, hut all wi be right in the end, though not perhaps by the >hurtest mean (To William Duane, iKn. (*. V., 577.) *

UNTTARIANISM.—No historical fact is letter eHtahli-,hed th;i that the doctrine of one (JotI, pure ami uueompmmdded, wan tli;

